

The Anthropocene Debate and (Post-)Covid-19 Challenges

A Roundtable Discussion

14 May 2021

Anthropocene Research Group, Newcastle University

2.30pm GMT	Address of welcome Shirley Jordan, Acting Dean of Research and Innovation
2.35pm	Introduction Bernhard Malkmus Newcastle
2.45pm	Book Presentation: The Anthropocene: A Multidisciplinary Approach
3pm	The triangulation of research, teaching, and policy-making within an Anthropocene framework: experiences prior to and during Covid-19 Impulse reflection: Helen Berry, Freyja Cox Jensen, Bryony Onciul, Nicola Whyte Exeter Discussion (moderation: Scott Ashley Newcastle)
3.45pm	Break
4pm	The role of the Anthropocene debate during the post-Covid-19 recovery in education and society: ideas and visions for the future Impulse reflection: Marta Gasparin, Mark Williams, Jan Zalasiewicz Leicester Shahzeen Attari, Eduardo Sonnewend Brondizio, Jason Kelly, Philip V. Scarpino Indiana Discussion (moderation: Duika Burges Watson Newcastle)
5pm	Open conversation (moderation: Andy Large Newcastle) In what ways can we reinvigorate the Anthropocene debate within the post-Covid-19 context? What kind of collaborations can we initiate among each other to rekindle research agendas, reframe teaching agendas, rethink knowledge transfers into policy-making?
5.45pm	Closing remarks

